The 2011-12 Respect Life Program begins this year on Respect Life Sunday, October 2. This year's theme comes from the Gospel of John, I came so that all might have life and have it to the full (cf. Jn 10:10). The Respect Life Program explores this theme by comparing a life lived for career and wealth compared to one lived in loving service to others. Each year the Respect Life Program offers a clear and compelling defense of Church teaching from primarily secular sources, covering such topics as abortion, contraception, the death penalty, persons with disabilities, embryo research, end-of-life issues, reproductive technologies, and love and marriage. Begun in 1972, the Respect Life Program brings Church teaching on the value and dignity of human life to the Catholic community and the wider public. The program combines all four aspects of the bishops' Pastoral Plan for Pro-Life Activities: education, prayer, service, and advocacy.

Bishop's Services Appeal begins this weekend

LAKE CHARLES - The annual Bishop's Services Appeal, the campaign seeking funds to aid in the operation of various ministries and programs of the Diocese of Lake Charles, begins this weekend, Sept. 17-18, in the churches of the Diocese.

Last year's Appeal was successful in raising $631,245.97, or 105.2 percent of the $600,000 overall goal for the campaign from the Catholic faithful in the 38 parishes of the local church of Southwest Louisiana.

This year's campaign goal remains at $600,000 and the Appeal will continue until the end of the fiscal year 2011-2012 on June 30, 2012.

In his message to the people of the Diocese about this year's Appeal, Bishop Glen John Provost said, "I am grateful to all of you for your continued support of the Bishop's Services Appeal, for I truly believe that your own vision for the needs of the great church is moving forward. As a faithful Catholic, your vision regarding church support must go beyond the pastoral needs of your own home parish."

Ten specific areas of the Diocesan organization are aided by contributions to Bishop's Services Appeal. Those include Catholic Education, Youth and Young Adult Ministry, Vocations and Seminarians, Catholic Charities, Family Life, the Seafarers Center, Diocesan Counseling Services, Evangelization, Communications and Saint Charles Center.

The Office of Catholic Charities of Southwest Louisiana has a new home at 1225 Second Street that includes two warehouses providing excellent storage space for canned and refrigerated foodstuffs. This food is provided to those most in need in our Diocese. Catholic Charities also assists those that qualify with medical expenses, utilities, and rent.

Bishop Provost's continuing work seeking out men who are discerning a call to the Diocesan priesthood has brought Vianney House to fruition. This "house of discernment," directed by Father Nathan Long, provides a year-long program for men considering a priestly vocation. Three men currently reside in the house, formerly the faculty residence at St. Louis Catholic High School, and take part in a structured program, sharing a common life with others who have this vocational interest.

Monsignor Ronald Groth, Director of Development, noted, "There are certain ministries that are needed to support what we call 'the ministries' in every parish. The Bishop's Services Appeal exists to fund the 'ministry support' that each parish needs that the local parish cannot provide for itself.

"Take for instance, each parish could not pay for the entire support of a seminarian," Monsignor Groth said. "Thank goodness the generosity of several parishes helps that to happen. Not every parish can raise the 'funding' to host a real professional religion teacher workshop of the quality that is provided our parish teachers by the Diocesan Office of Religious Education.

"Each parish could not fund the entire retirement salary of one or more of their retired clergy," he continued. "No one parish can offer the quality of charitable works as does the cooperative effort of the Office of Catholic Charities. In these days when so many lay people are in full-time ministry in many of our parishes, it is a blessing to have opportunities for continuing education. Even our present Deacon Inquirer Program, in which 17 men are being offered a five-year period of theological and scriptural education, without a diocesan formation program each parish could not accomplish this on their own. There are many wonderful programs funded through Bishop's Services Appeal that are a blessing to all the parishes."

Bishop Provost speaks to Lake Charles Serra Club

(Read more at <http://live.lcdioocese.org/news/928-bishop-speaks-on-catholic-identity-q.html>)

LAKE CHARLES – Bishop Glen John Provost was the guest speaker at the September luncheon of the Lake Charles Serra Club, speaking on “Catholic Identity in a Confusing World.”

The Bishop noted that, when he was growing up in Southwest Louisiana in the 50s and 60s, “you were quite aware of who you were as a Catholic.”

“I recall being asked by cafeteria workers in line for lunch, ‘Are you Catholic?’ In which case they would dutifully place a fish stick, instead of a chicken steak on your plate because it was Ash Wednesday and you were supposed to be abstaining.” He also noted a story of working with a convert to the Faith in the 1980s, who felt this abstinence from meat on Fridays - that public demonstration of the Faith - was the seed that led him to conversion.

The Bishop did point out that it is difficult to reduce “Catholic identity” to one action, namely observing fast and abstinence. He noted that at a United States Conference of Catholic Bishops’ meeting in June, Francis Cardinal George made reference to fasting and abstinence in the context of how Catholics perceived themselves.

“He said that when the Church relaxed its laws governing fast and abstinence, the Church sent an unintended message that the practice of the Faith was a private affair,” Bishop Provost noted. “Let us leave aside the obvious that fasting and abstinence are intended for our personal sanctification. Every requirement of religious practice has this as an end.

“I would say that our world needs witness, as much as it does people who act according to their conscience,” he continued. “The two are not mutually exclusive. As Pope Benedict XVI has reminded us, there is no such thing as a completely private religious practice. When I adhere to a belief, then I act upon what it is I believe. I can do this respectfully. I should also be able to explain why it is I do what I do. This is all part of witness as well.”

The Bishop also pointed out a few examples of the loss of Catholic identity when it impacts witness – maintaining Sunday as a day of worship and rest, instead of acting as it just another regular day full of regular activities; a Catholic family with none of their children baptized; or how parents should speak responsibly to their children who engage in immoral behavior.

“What we do makes a difference.” Bishop Provost said. “The witness we give leaves an impression. A Catholic identity – an awareness of what you believe can make a difference – makes that possible. We do not need self-righteousness. We do not need the imposition of rules for the sake of rules. We need a connection to be made between faith and action.”

Bishop Glen John Provost makes a point during his presentation on Catholic Identity in a Confusing World” at a recent luncheon meeting of the Lake Charles Serra Club.
